Y5 Example Text - Recounts: Newspaper Reports

The Sporting Telegraph

www.sporting-telegraph.com — The Number One Sports Newspaper

Brilliant Bolt Grabs Gold Again!

Jamaican Sprinter Takes London by Storm Winning Three Olympic Gold Medals

Exclusive Report by John Stevenson

Usain Bolt reaffirmed his title as the World's Fastest Man by achieving a marvellous third gold medal of the games this week. In front of a deafening capacity crowd in London's Olympic Stadium, the 25-year-old world record holder completed a remarkable set of victories to establish himself as one of the greatest sprinters of all time.

Following earlier victories in both the 100m and 200m individual sprint, Bolt inspired his Jamaica team-mates to a third triumph in the 4x100m relay. The three gold medals are added to his personal collection alongside similar achievements in the corresponding individual events of Beijing in 2008.

Afterwards, the reigning 100m and 200m world champion was understandably buoyant in his celebrations.

"It's a brilliant feeling. It's been a long road. I'm happy, but I'm relieved. It's great to be in the history books as one of the greatest. I'm proud of myself," he told reporters.

Although other athletes have won more medals than Bolt, including American sprinter Carl Lewis who was commentating for a television network, no-one else can match the explosive power and unrivalled pace exhibited by Bolt.

Usain Bolt: winner of three Olympic gold medals in London

The sprinter's Jamaican team-mates were equally jubilant following their relay victory, describing it as a momentous day in Athletics history. Even the American team, who were disqualified from the relay following a disastrous illegal baton handover, were gracious in defeat. Admitting disappointment at missing out on a team medal, Justin Gatlin promised supporters that the team had given it all they could and refused to criticise the officials' decision, but did apologise to the US fans.

Now thinking ahead to his future and the potential of bringing down the curtain on a glittering Athletics career, Bolt confirmed that he intends to compete in 2016 but retire before the next Olympic Games in 2020. Instead, he will focus on charity work, a likely ambassador role in the sport or could even consider a dramatic switch to another sport such as football. As the crowds filtered out of the magnificent stadium, the talk was all about just one man - the incredible Usain Bolt, who is surely already an Olympic legend.

Y5 Example Text - Recounts: Newspaper Reports
Annotated Genre Features

[1]the name of the newspaper

The Sporting Telegraph[1]

www.sporting-telegraph.com — The Number One Sports Newspaper

[3]a sub-headline which gives a bit more information

[4]a 'byline' (the writer's name)

[2]a headline that uses pun, rhyme or alliteration

Brilliant Bolt Grabs Gold Again![2]

Jamaican Sprinter Takes London by Storm Winning Three Olympic Gold Medals[3]

Exclusive Report by John Stevenson[4]

[5]an introductory paragraph that includes the 5 W's

Usain Bolt reaffirmed his title as the World's Fastest Man by achieving a marvellous third gold medal of the games this week. In front of a deafening capacity crowd in London's Olympic Stadium, the 25-year-old world record holder completed a remarkable set of victories to establish himself as one of the greatest sprinters of all time.

Following earlier victories in both the 100m and 200m individual sprint, Bolt inspired his Jamaica team-mates to a third triumph in the 4x100m relay. The three gold medals are added to his personal collection alongside similar achievements in the corresponding individual events of Beijing in 2008.

Afterwards, the reigning 100m and 200m world champion was understandably buoyant in his celebrations.

[9]direct and reported speech

"It's a brilliant feeling. It's been a long road. I'm happy, but I'm relieved. It's great to be in the history books as one of the greatest. I'm proud of myself," he told reporters.

[8]write in third person and past tense

Although other athletes have won more medals than Bolt, including American sprinter Carl Lewis who was commentating for a television network, no-one else can match the explosive power and unrivalled pace exhibited by Bolt.

Usain Bolt: winner of three Olympic gold medals in London

[6]pictures with captions

The sprinter's Jamaican team-mates were equally jubilant following their relay victory, describing it as a momentous day in Athletics history. Even the American team, who were disqualified from the relay following a disastrous illegal baton handover, were gracious in defeat. Admitting disappointment at missing out on a team medal, Justin Gatlin promised supporters that the team had given it all they could and refused to criticise the officials' decision, but did apologise to the US fans.[9]

[7]a commentary of the main events

Now thinking ahead to his future and the potential of bringing down the curtain on a glittering Athletics career, Bolt confirmed that he intends to compete in 2016 but retire before the next Olympic Games in 2020. Instead, he will focus on charity work, a likely ambassador role in the sport or could even consider a dramatic switch to another sport such as football. As the crowds filtered out of the magnificent stadium, the talk was all about just one man - the incredible Usain Bolt, who is surely already an Olympic legend.

[10]a conclusion paragraph to explain what might happen next

Y5 Example Text - Recounts: Newspaper Reports
Annotated Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Features

All text: Uses the full range of spelling, grammar and punctuation features taught in previous year groups, including pronouns for cohesion, adverbials, and the correct tense throughout

[2] Selects appropriate grammar and vocabulary to match the purpose and audience

[3] Uses organisational and presentational devices that are relevant to the text type, e.g. headings, bullet points, underlining

[4] Précises longer passages

[5] Uses linking words/phrases between sentences and paragraphs to build cohesion including time adverbials, e.g. later; place adverbials, e.g. nearby; and number, e.g. secondly

The Sporting Telegraph[3]

www.sporting-telegraph.com — The Number One Sports Newspaper

Brilliant Bolt Grabs Gold Again![3]

Jamaican Sprinter Takes London by Storm Winning Three Olympic Gold Medals

Exclusive Report by John Stevenson[3]

Usain Bolt reaffirmed[10] his title as the World's Fastest Man by achieving a marvellous third gold medal[12] of the games this week. In front of a deafening[11] capacity crowd[2] in London's Olympic Stadium,[5] the 25-year-old world record holder[2] completed[11] a remarkable set of victories to establish himself[2] as one of the greatest sprinters of all time.[4]

Following earlier victories in both the 100m and 200m individual sprint,[5] Bolt inspired his Jamaica team-mates to a third triumph[2] in the 4x100m relay. The three gold medals are added to his personal collection alongside similar achievements[13] in the corresponding[13] individual events of Beijing in 2008.

Afterwards,[5] the reigning[12] 100m and 200m world champion was understandably buoyant[2] in his celebrations.

"It's a brilliant feeling. It's been a long road. I'm happy, but I'm relieved. It's great to be in the history books as one of the greatest. I'm proud of myself," he told reporters.

Although other athletes have won more medals than Bolt,[5] including American sprinter Carl Lewis who was commentating for a television network,[6 and 8] no-one else can match the explosive power[2] and unrivalled pace exhibited by Bolt.

Usain Bolt: winner of three Olympic gold medals in London

The sprinter's Jamaican team-mates were equally jubilant following their relay victory,[9] describing it as a momentous day in Athletics history. Even the American team, who were disqualified from the relay following a disastrous[13] illegal baton handover,[6 and 8] were gracious in defeat. Admitting disappointment at missing out on a team medal, Justin Gatlin promised supporters that the team had given it all they could and refused to criticise[11 and 13] the officials' decision, but did apologise[11] to the US fans.

Now thinking ahead to his future[5] and the potential of bringing down the curtain[2] on a glittering Athletics career, Bolt confirmed that he intends to compete in 2016 but retire before the next Olympic Games in 2020. Instead,[5] he will[7] focus on charity work, a likely[7] ambassador role in the sport or could[7] even consider a dramatic switch to another sport such as football. As the crowds filtered out of the magnificent stadium,[9] the talk was all about just one man -[8] the incredible Usain Bolt,[8] who is surely[7] already an Olympic legend.[6]

[6] Uses relative clauses beginning with a relative pronoun (who, which, where, when, whose, that), e.g. Professor Scriffle, who was a famous inventor, had made a new discovery

[7] Uses adverbs and modal verbs to indicate degrees of possibility, e.g. surely, perhaps, should, might

[8] Uses brackets, dashes or commas to indicate parenthesis

[9] Uses commas to clarify meaning or to avoid ambiguity

[10] Spells a wider range of verb prefixes correctly, e.g. deactivate, overturn, misconduct

[11] Spells nouns or adjectives converted into verbs using suffixes, e.g. designate, classify, criticise

[12] Spells more complex homophones correctly, e.g. affect/effect, practice/practise

[13] Spells most words correctly from the Y5/6 statutory spelling list

Y5 Example Text - Recounts: Newspaper Reports
Annotated Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Features

All text: Uses the full range of spelling, grammar and punctuation features taught in previous year groups, including pronouns for cohesion, adverbials, and the correct tense throughout

[2] Selects appropriate grammar and vocabulary to match the purpose and audience

[3] Uses organisational and presentational devices that are relevant to the text type, e.g. headings, bullet points, underlining

[4] Précises longer passages

[5] Uses linking words/phrases between sentences and paragraphs to build cohesion including time adverbials, e.g. later; place adverbials, e.g. nearby; and number, e.g. secondly

The Sporting Telegraph[3]

www.sporting-telegraph.com — The Number One Sports Newspaper

Brilliant Bolt Grabs Gold Again![3]

Jamaican Sprinter Takes London by Storm Winning Three Olympic Gold Medals

Exclusive Report by John Stevenson[3]

Usain Bolt reaffirmed[10] his title as the World's Fastest Man by achieving a marvellous third gold medal[12] of the games this week. In front of a deafening[11] capacity crowd[2] in London's Olympic Stadium,[5] the 25-year-old world record holder[2] completed[11] a remarkable set of victories to establish himself[2] as one of the greatest sprinters of all time.[4]

Following earlier victories in both the 100m and 200m individual sprint,[5] Bolt inspired his Jamaica team-mates to a third triumph[2] in the 4x100m relay. The three gold medals are added to his personal collection alongside similar achievements[13] in the corresponding[13] individual events of Beijing in 2008.

Afterwards,[5] the reigning[12] 100m and 200m world champion was understandably buoyant[2] in his celebrations.

"It's a brilliant feeling. It's been a long road. I'm happy, but I'm relieved. It's great to be in the history books as one of the greatest. I'm proud of myself," he told reporters.

Although other athletes have won more medals than Bolt,[5] including American sprinter Carl Lewis who was commentating for a television network,[6 and 8] no-one else can match the explosive power[2] and unrivalled pace exhibited by Bolt.

Usain Bolt: winner of three Olympic gold medals in London

The sprinter's Jamaican team-mates were equally jubilant following their relay victory,[9] describing it as a momentous day in Athletics history. Even the American team, who were disqualified from the relay following a disastrous[13] illegal baton handover,[6 and 8] were gracious in defeat. Admitting disappointment at missing out on a team medal, Justin Gatlin promised supporters that the team had given it all they could and refused to criticise[11 and 13] the officials' decision, but did apologise[11] to the US fans.

Now thinking ahead to his future[5] and the potential of bringing down the curtain[2] on a glittering Athletics career, Bolt confirmed that he intends to compete in 2016 but retire before the next Olympic Games in 2020. Instead,[5] he will[7] focus on charity work, a likely[7] ambassador role in the sport or could[7] even consider a dramatic switch to another sport such as football. As the crowds filtered out of the magnificent stadium,[9] the talk was all about just one man -[8] the incredible Usain Bolt,[8] who is surely[7] already an Olympic legend.[6]

[6] Uses relative clauses beginning with a relative pronoun (who, which, where, when, whose, that), e.g. Professor Scriffle, who was a famous inventor, had made a new discovery

[7] Uses adverbs and modal verbs to indicate degrees of possibility, e.g. surely, perhaps, should, might

[8] Uses brackets, dashes or commas to indicate parenthesis

[9] Uses commas to clarify meaning or to avoid ambiguity

[10] Spells a wider range of verb prefixes correctly, e.g. deactivate, overturn, misconduct

[11] Spells nouns or adjectives converted into verbs using suffixes, e.g. designate, classify, criticise

[12] Spells more complex homophones correctly, e.g. affect/effect, practice/practise

[13] Spells most words correctly from the Y5/6 statutory spelling list